

The Schooner horse drawn wagon drove onto the field and cost Oklahoma a 15-yard penalty during the Orange Bowl.

Title Thoughts Cost Sooners

1-3-85 Herald

MIAMI (UPI) — The Oklahoma Sooners were so preoccupied with winning the national championship in the ratings that they forgot to do it on the field.

Coach Barry Switzer spent all of last week telling the national press and whoever else would listen that his No. 2 Sooners deserved to vault past No. 1 Brigham Young and be declared the national champion with an Orange Bowl victory over No. 3 Washington.

They turned out to be wasted words as Oklahoma blew a 17-14 fourth-quarter lead in falling to the Pac-10 Huskies, 28-17.

"It wasn't the fact Coach

Switzer put emphasis on the ranking," Oklahoma quarterback Danny Bradley said. "Only two percent of all college football players get in a position to win the national championship. We're supposed to be mature enough and smart enough to go about our business.

"We thought too much about the national championship rather than Washington and we paid for it."

There won't be too many plays from the Orange Bowl in the Oklahoma highlight film. That's what made the loss so bitter for the Sooners: they were the No. 2 team in the nation but didn't much play like it.

The Sooners had the nation's best defense against the rush in 1984 with an average yield of 69 yards per game but couldn't stop Washington. Oklahoma hardly even slowed down the Huskies, who rushed for 192 yards including 135 by Jacque Robinson.

The Oklahoma offense fumbled the ball six times, losing two of them, and quarterback Danny Bradley was sacked twice for 26 yards in losses and also threw a fourth-quarter interception that led to Washington's final touchdown.

After Washington took a 21-17 lead, Oklahoma speedster Buster Rhymes tried to catch the ensuing kickoff on the north sideline at the 2-yard line and promptly dropped the ball out of bounds.

And to top it all off, the Oklahoma mascot, the "Sooner Schooner," a covered wagon pulled by two Shetland ponies, was assessed a 15-yard unsportsmanlike conduct penalty when it charged onto the field to celebrate a fourth-quarter field goal.

Except that the kick was nullified by penalty and the wagon wound up in the middle of the Washington defensive huddle.

First No. 1 nod

The two major wire-service final football polls won't be out until early this evening, but the USA Today/Cable News Network poll released Wednesday morning overwhelmingly chose Brigham Young's Cougars as 1984's top team.

BYU received 26 first-place votes to three each for Washington and Florida. In total points, BYU was crowned champion over second-place Washington, 789-751 (see listing below).

The USA/CNN poll — a survey of the opinions of USA Today, Cable News Network and Gannett Newspaper staffers — is not considered in the same authoritative class as the Associated Press (set for 4:30 p.m. MST Wednesday release) and United Press International (4 p.m. MST release).
